

Hello radars_teddy

Show unread posts since last visit. Show new replies to your posts. September 18, 2021, 02:49:05 PM

Search

News:

Register to attend our live meetings.

Home Help Search Profile My Messages Calendar Members Logout

World of Coins » Profile of radars_teddy » Show Posts » Messages

Profile Info Modify Profile Actions

44

Show Posts

This section allows you to view all posts made by this member. Note that you can only see posts made in areas you currently have access to.

Messages Topics Attachments

Messages - radars_teddy

Pages: 1 [2] 3 4 5 6 7

Wildlife and agriculture / Re: FAO: General coins « on: Today at 04:11:06~AM »

Reply Quote Notify

that would have been better

Reply Quote Notify Remove

Special circulating decimal coins / Re: UK text-heavy 50 pence and 2 pound designs
« on: Today at 03:06:22 AM »

Quote from: agoodall on Today at 01:23:58 AM

I'm glad it depicts the joy of the civilian population rather than more military images or plain text like the war and peace £5.

But it doesn't do that. It just shows a crowd. It is just not iconic enough. Showing soldiers cheering, BTW, is not militry images like Tanks rolling over dead bodies.

Reply Quote Notify

New Zealand / Re: Sad Sad Sad « on: Today at 03:01:40 AM »

how would you remove it? With a toothpick?

Reply Quote Notify Remove

Special circulating decimal coins / Re: UK text-heavy 50 pence and 2 pound designs « on: Today at 12:30:32 AM »

if it was soldiers cheering it would make more sense

Reply Quote Notify

Quote from: chrisild on September 16, 2021, 09:31:40 PM

In this case, there is not too much text, I think, but parts of the text and the pictorial design overlap. Especially the text at the bottom (Victory in Europe Day) and the light beam pattern "interfere" in a strange way. Would have left that line out – you would still have had the big VICTORY and the small VE DAY references. Fortunately the central part of the design is people, and they are even in the foreground.

Christian

I think the problem with that design is that the image doesn't depict anthing understandable to the topic of the coin (or anything else). Without the text, you are completly baffeled as to the meaning and the purpose of the coin.

Reply Quote Notify

New Zealand / Sad Sad Sad « on: September 17, 2021, 12:59:41 AM »

I got this wonderful silver six pence, but on photographing it, it clearly has a small rim damage where there is some corosion... it is sadf sad ebcause it is a beautiful coin overwise, but there is nothing that can be done with this

Reply Quote Notify

New Zealand / Re: Extra Special 6 Pence on: September 17, 2021, 12:47:26 AM »

Quote from: brandm24 on September 14, 2021, 10:39:22 AM

For sure. It's just a coin that has a lot of eye appeal.

Bruce

Yup it has beauty well beyound its grade.

Reply Quote Notify Remove

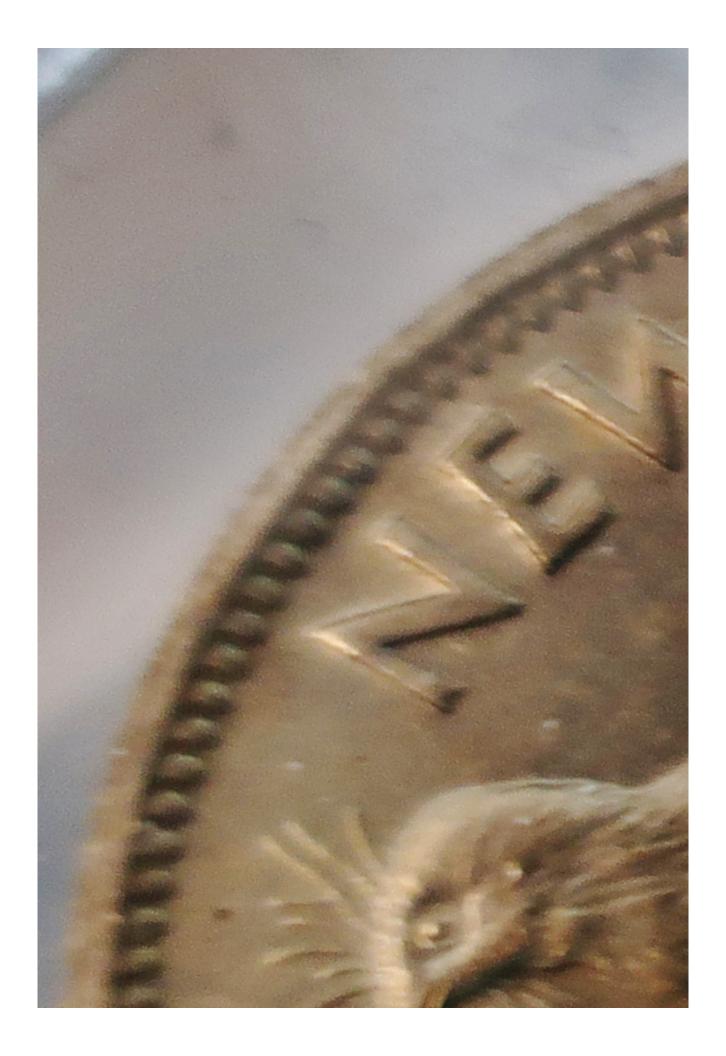

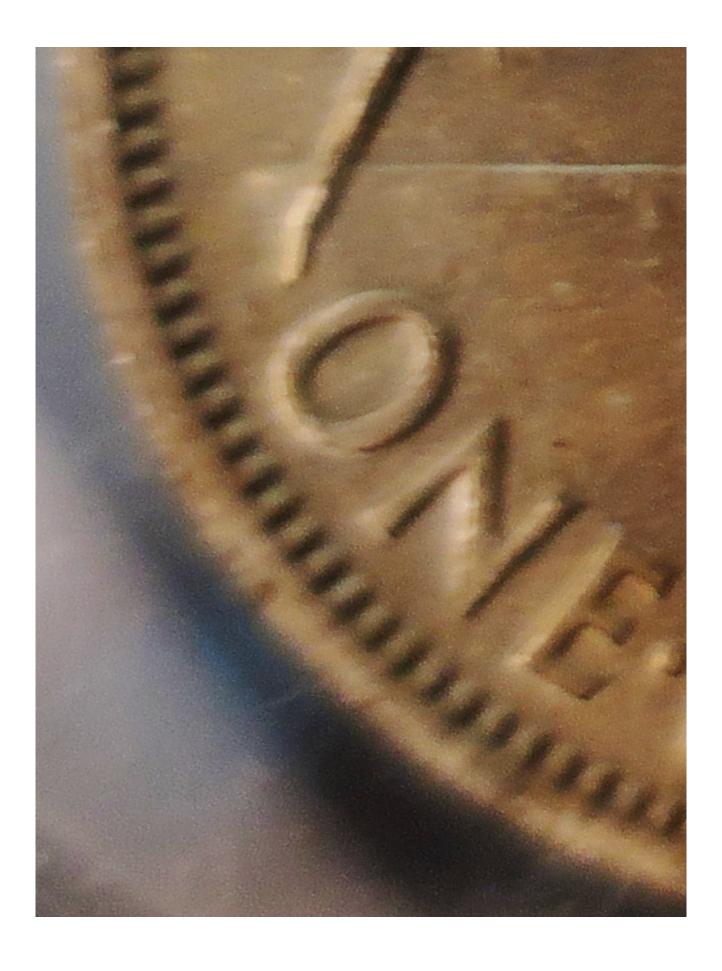

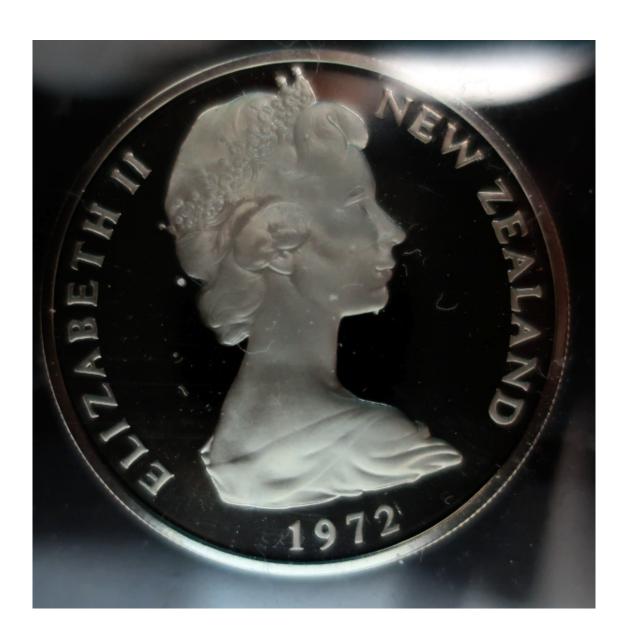

New Zealand / Re: 20cent KIWI proofs « on: September 17, 2021, 12:22:03 AM »

few more images

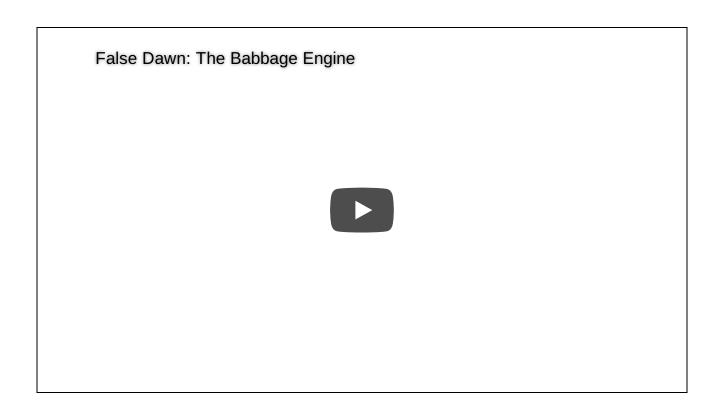

Special circulating decimal coins / Re: UK Commemorative coins for 2021
« on: September 15, 2021, 03:35:25 AM »

Quote

Instead of yabp (yet another boring portrait), the design tries to capture what the commemoration

But it fails misserably, which is too bad because the Babbage machine is actually a thing of beauty and could have been a beautiful subject for a coin

Reply Quote Notify

New Zealand / Re: Bronze Pennys
« on: September 14, 2021, 12:06:05 PM »

I am wondering, what is the market value of the 1942 Bonze Penny?

Reply Quote Notify Remove

New Zealand / Re: Extra Special 6 Pence on: September 13, 2021, 02:10:58 PM »

Quote

I once had an old US Bust Quarter that had very similar toning as yours. It came from my father's collection and had been stored in an old album for a decades.

This is wonderful detail if you compare it to other six pences.

Reply Quote Notify Remove

Pages: 1 [2] 3 4 5 6 7